

GREENEST: DAY 2- FOOTPRINT
VASU AGARWAL: GREEN LIFE
COLEGIO NUEVA GRANADA

If I were to be president for 24 hours, some of the issues that I would try to resolve and impact are human rights and corruption. These are 2 main topics that are seen all over the world, some places more than others. A government which, includes the president, is supposed to help and make sure everyone is safe and can live freely. Unfortunately, there are many problems which hold back this duty. Again, if I were to be president, these are 2 of the main issues I would tackle.

First, is the lack of human rights. The human rights were created by the UN in 1948 to avoid chaos and inequality. So, why doesn't everyone have human rights. The problem is that human rights are a choice that the UN gave. If you wanted to follow these rights, great! And if you don't, well to bad! Many countries established the human rights in their carta magna, but, people still don't follow them. As a president I want to make sure that countries all over the world have human rights and that it is not a choice. Everyone deserves to be treated equally and should be able to live freely. We should all be treated equally male or female, poor or rich, black or white. We should all have food, bathrooms, and we should decide what we want to do. We should be able to decide who to marry, what job to have, etc.

Another issue is corruption. Now, I know what you must be thinking. Vasu, that is not creative! Yes, true. However, if I wasn't talking about this then who? Corruption is still going on, and maybe that is a reason why human rights aren't being followed. Think about it. Corruption happens and then we don't have money to make good useful public works that are supposed to help us. If we don't have the money and supplies to give food to the poor, have school for education, and other things, then we are not following human rights. All issues have to do with each other, and they are caused by one each other. If corruption is around, that is hard, as the government does not have a lot of money to necessities. The government is not supplying enough resources to everyone, so people who are not

This is important to me because I am fortunate enough that I can go to a proper, clean bathroom, I can attend school, I am not a slave, my parents love me equally because I am a daughter, etc. Unfortunately, a ton of people have not gotten these rights in many countries, even though the UN has come up with 30 simple human rights that everyone deserve. Corruption has a lot to deal with this. Once again, I am lucky that I have the sufficient money to go to school even though there are people who are corrupt. But, some kids out there aren't. AS a president, this is what I want to accomplish.

The why. Why am I doing this? Because I care. As a president my duty is to care for all and everyone. If I don't follow and make sure human rights are being used, then I wouldn't be caring. If I don't stop corruption, then who is? We are not paying taxes for that corrupt person. We are paying taxes for our country, so it becomes a better place.

In conclusion, there are places all over the world with issues and if we won't solve them, then who?

"The people who are crazy enough to think they can change the world are the ones that do"

-Steve Jobs

