Even though I am not 18, I am looking forward to being able to vote so much. After Trump's election, so many school shootings, and Brett Kavanaugh confirmation to the supreme court, I am itching to get out there and make a difference. I ask all of my friends who are turning 18 soon if they are registered to vote. I've gotten mostly no's from them. It disappoints me, but I try and have a constructive conversation with them. I tell them that it's better to vote than not at all, even if you don't think your that political, you still have some idea of what's going on in the world and can vote your conscience.

I am part of a group called Bay Area Student Activists, and this October, we are hosting a voter information forum. Candidates from local to state races are speaking about their platforms. Even though I can't vote myself, I can educate others and provide resources for others to vote.
