*While I invited all five of my friends to come to my party, only two were available, but we still learned a lot.

Which snack did you buy?

- Ryan: Organic Z Bar Filled (banana with chocolate and peanut butter) from Clif
- Andrew: Wavy Potato Chips from Simple Truth Organic
- Anjali: Fruit Smoothie (filled with strawberry banana) from Clif

Why did you choose it?

- Ryan: I liked the idea of banana filled with chocolate and peanut butter
- Andrew: I like regular potato chips so I thought I would try these
- Anjali: I was given a lot of these so I thought I would try it

Where did you buy it? Would you buy it again?

- Ryan: Kroger, Yes
- Andrew: Kroger, Yes...also he likes the chocolate Clif bar because it doesn't have soy and he is allergic to soy
- Anjali: I saw these same Clif bars at Kroger and I got my Luna bar from Costco, I would buy the chocolate bar, the chips, and the chocolate banana bar again

What did you learn?

- Ryan: I learned that because of the innovations in technology, people thought that they could add GMOs to food, but they were not aware of the negative health consequences
- Andrew: I learned that patenting these GMO seeds can lead down a dangerous path of companies monopolizing seeds, insecticides, fertilizers etc.
- Anjali: I learned that dangerous chemicals that were used as weapons in wars, were only slightly modified to be put into the food we eat.

What will you change?

- Ryan: eat more non-GMO foods
- Andrew: Going to be more conscious about what food I will buy from the grocery and what brands I am supporting with my money
- Anjali: I will eat organic and non GMO whenever possible.

Our Awareness-raising Idea:

Our school has mandatory events for convocation credit. One of the categories for these events is "wellness." We will ask to have a convocation event that discusses the importance of organic and non-GMO foods.
